Location

The Harp Inn is located in the village of Letterston in rural north Pembrokeshire, on the doorstep of the Pembrokeshire Coast National Park, surrounded by beautiful countryside and an excellent gateway to a number of quality Blue Flag beaches and tourist attractions in the area. Pembrokeshire is renowned as a tourist destination for those taking part in outdoor pursuits, especially water-based, with the outstanding coastline of the Pembrokeshire Coast National Park and its well known and popular coastal trail: a mecca for tourists and second-home owners, attracting a huge number of visitors throughout the year.

The village straddles the main A40, approximately 5.5 miles south of Fishguard and 10 miles north of Haverfordwest. It is an excellent base to visit the huge number of surrounding attractions such as the Blue Lagoon at Abereddi, St Davids, Newgale Beach, the Havens, Marlows and Skomer Island to name but a few. It is also close to the holiday hotspots of Newport, Tenby and Saundersfoot.

The Property

The Harp Inn was thought to originally have been built in the 15th century as a small working farm but later developed into a public house and inn. The building is constructed of local stone with rendered and colourwashed elevations under slate roofs. It has been developed and extended many times over the years, with the main building becoming the public house, and the outbuildings incorporated into the main building to provide quality letting bedrooms.

It has been owned by the same family since 1981, testament to its success. During their tenure it has been developed, with letting accommodation and the addition of a small caravan and campsite to the rear, with electric hookups.

The public house is well known as a destination dining venue and this provides an opportunity for new operators to continue the rich history of this well-established business.
